6 tips for your next driving vacation

Modern professionals are working more and taking fewer days off each year. Allina Healthcare estimates that more than 765 million vacation days are unused by Americans each year. One of the reasons people often give for not vacationing is that travel costs too much. A 2024 summer travel report from Deloitte Insights found that after two years of strong gains in the travel sector, Americans were planning fewer trips in 2024 than a year prior, with travelers indicating the high cost of travel as their reasons for staying home.

A driving vacation, otherwise known as a road trip, can reduce the cost of travel and may amplify the fun. These tips can make for a safe, enjoyable and memorable trip.

- Get a vehicle checkup. If you'll be relying on your personal vehicle, then it is best to ensure that everything is in good working order. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration offers a Recalls Look-up Tool to check to see if your vehicle has any critical safety issues. It's also best to make sure that tires are in good shape and filled to the manufacturer's recommended pressure. Double check all fluids and get an oil change if it is close to the time of service.

- What's the destination? Some people find that road trips are fun even without a predetermined destination in mind. A handful of smaller stops can make for a fun, spontaneous trip. Maybe you want to drive a classic roadway like Route 66? Or take to a scenic coastal roadway like the Pacific Coast Highway or Route 1 along the eastern seaboard? Choose a destination that suits your budget.
- Consider a travel club membership. Membership in programs like AAA or AARP enable members to get discounts on various travel services, such as car rentals or hotel stays. Members may be eligible for percentages off on meals at popular restaurant chains. Membership in these programs may help to save money.
- Plan early. Spring and summer are popular times to travel, particularly during weeks when children are off from school. It's important to book campgrounds or other lodging well in advance if you're planning to visit popular places like national parks and other tourist-heavy areas.

- Be realistic about mileage goals. Some drivers may be on autopilot and fall into commuting habits of trying to get from point A to point B in the least amount of time. Slowing down to take in the scenery can make a trip more enjoyable. AARP also says to be mindful of the personal needs and abilities of drivers. Sharing the load of driving can make it possible to cover more miles in less time.

- Hit a few quirky or local attractions. The best way to see the country is to take in what's unique along the way. Although a stop at a popular fast food chain might save time, it won't offer the same memories as visiting a local haunt or roadside attraction, such as Carhenge in Alliance, Nebraska.

Road trips can make vacationing possible for people who find the cost of traveling by other means prohibitive.
